ABSTRACT

The usage of Artificial Intelligence has led to better quality of service at several organizations. This paper explores the case of hospital management of use of artificial intelligence in patient flow and bed management. This paper specifically draws its observations from documented case study of National Health Service in UK, Birmingham and Leeds Teaching Hospitals on how factors such as algorithmic transparency, regulatory frameworks, accountability and equity considerations shape the domain of operational hospital management based on artificial intelligence. The case study shows how artificial intelligence can be smartly used to improve on reducing the length of stay as well as improve bed utilization. This paper discusses an adaptive governance framework of public health systems integrating artificial intelligence into hospital operations. The framework lays ground to reduce bed occupancy delays and improve the efficiency in operations, resulting in equitable and high-quality patient care.

ABSTRACT

Universal health coverage(UHC)aims to ensure that all people receive the health services they need without financial hardship .However ,many health care systems face challenges such as limited resources, increases patient demand , and unequal access to care . Artificial intelligence (AI) has emerged as a innovative technology that can improve healthcare delivery, enhance efficiency, healthcare delivery, enhance efficiency, and support sustainable healthcare system. Objectives: The objectives of this study is to explore the role of artificial
